STUDIES IN MEANING 2

BRIDGING THE PERSONAL AND SOCIAL IN CONSTRUCTIVIST PSYCHOLOGY

Edited by

Jonathan D. Raskin & Sara K. Bridges

This book marks an attempt to “bridge the gap” between personal and social perspectives within constructivism. The chapters within stress the emerging integration of personal and social aspects of therapy, research, and theory development. As a result, this volume continues an already vibrant scholarly dialogue about personal and social perspectives within constructivist psychology. The chapters stand on their own as unique contributions, while also expounding on important personal/social themes.

EXPLORING CONSTRUCTIVIST PSYCHOLOGY
(2002)

Edited by Jonathan D. Raskin and Sara K. Bridges
(SUNY New Paltz) (University of Memphis)

This volume marks an effort to provide examples of the many voices expressing themselves in a more integrated and collaborative way in constructivist psychology. Whether you are a committed constructivist psychologist or a skeptical newcomer to personal construct psychology and constructivism, you will find this volume useful in its efforts to overview the field and present papers that examine constructivist theory, practice, and research.
